Irish Fiddlers

The Kane Sisters and Edel Fox

Saturday, July 31, 2010, 8 PM

$20 advance/$23 door

Sisters Liz and Yvonne Kane play the Sligo style of fiddle music from Connemara. They learned music from both their grandfather Jimmy Mullen and South Sligo musician and teacher, Mary Finn McCrudden. Along with the recordings of the Rainey brothers, their grandfather and Mary were an early influence on their music. The Rainey brothers were travelling fiddle players in the 1950s who visited the sisters' hometown and surrounding areas.

Yvonne and Liz consider their style to be heavily influenced by South Sligo fiddle playing, the music of East Galway and in particular the fiddle playing and compositions of Paddy Fahey. In recent years, the sisters have been privileged to meet and play with Paddy, whose music plays a central role in their repertoire. The recordings of Michael Coleman, Hughie Gillespie, Andy McGann and Kathleen Collins have also made an impact on their music.
